

Steep Increase in Imposter Scam Losses: What People are Reporting and How to Fight Back

WHEN:

Friday, Sept. 20, 11:00 am - 12:00 pm PT | 1:00 - 2:00 pm CT | 2:00 - 3:00 pm ET

WHERE:

Register in advance for this meeting: CLICK HERE
After registering, you will receive a confirmation email containing your link to join. We provide simultaneous interpretation in Spanish, Korean, and Mandarin. When you register you will be asked to choose a language. If you wish to listen to the original audio in English simply choose "none".

WHY:

Did someone tell you to move or transfer money to “protect” it? Did they claim to be from a government agency like the FTC or the Social Security Administration or a well-known company like your bank, Amazon, or Microsoft? That’s a scam.

The FTC reports a steep rise in reported losses to scams that impersonate businesses and government agencies. Many now start with a call or message about a routine problem, like suspicious activity on an account. But in a new twist, the story quickly takes a more serious turn.

Learn about the top five impersonation scams people are reporting and how to spot and report them.

WHO:

Kati Daffan, Assistant Director, Division of Marketing Practices, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, District of Columbia

Emma Fletcher, Senior Data Researcher, Federal Trade Commission, Washington DC-Baltimore Area

Testimonials

CONTACT:

Sandy Close -- sclose@ethnicmediaservices.org

Jessica Martin -- jmartin@ethnicmediaservices.org

